“Being Human in a Digital Civilization”

Sister Angela Ann Zukowski

Sr. Angela Ann Zukowski, MSHS, D. Min., Director — Institute for Pastoral Initiatives; Professor, University of Dayton, with a particular interest and expertise in faith in the digital age of robust social media, computer and digital technologies. She has received numerous national and international awards and recognition for her contributions to Catholic education.

What are the challenges of social media networking and the consequences for adapting a lifestyle that is primarily digital? How do Catholic educators address these fundamental questions in a digital civilization? What does it mean to be human? How do we cultivate human authenticity? Is there a place for inter-personal and communal relationships today that is non-digital?

Catholic educators cannot ignore the ongoing research and findings of neuroscience for addressing these questions. Catholic education has a critical role for contributing to the conversation for affirming the ‘dignity of the human person’ in a digital culture.
