

Jamie Majeski to Lead New K-12 Math Portfolio

Jamie Majeski has been named to the position of Assistant Superintendent by Director of Education Scott Johnson. Mr. Majeski will lead system initiatives to support student engagement and achievement in K-12 mathematics. This is a new position for all school boards across the province, which is funded by the Ministry of Education.

“Jamie brings to this new role a wealth of experience, working in mathematics instruction and learning,” says Scott Johnson, Director of Education. “In this new portfolio, Jamie will work with school administration, classroom teachers, the Ministry of Education, EQAO and the Board’s senior team to support school and board improvement planning in math.”

During his career as an educator, Mr. Majeski has held a wide variety of positions, including classroom teacher, department head of mathematics, numeracy support teacher, student success numeracy lead, K-12 Catholic curriculum consultant and secondary vice principal. In addition, he has written ministry curriculum and supported EQAO with both question creation and student assessments.

Mr. Majeski earned his master’s degree in mathematics from the University of Waterloo in 2018 and holds an Honours Specialist in mathematics.

“Jamie looks forward to working collaboratively with school teams across the St. Clair district, to further support math fluency,” says Mr. Johnson.
